The line is a result of decades of experience on a global scale that embodies Eva's unique philosophy — people need to be more gentle with their skin. The treatments are beneficial for both elective and required surgeries.

Tell us more about yourself.
After studying advanced facial and bodywork therapies around the globe, I developed my own unique style of skincare upon arriving to the United States in 1989. One of my specialties is the Lymphatic Wellness Treatment, which combines aromatherapy and slow wave motions that detoxify the body and boost the immune system while balancing the chakras with seashells.

Best treatment for dry skin?
The compounds used in my Sensitive Skin Therapy are designed to help red, irritated, and allergy-prone skin. We use botanicals like black currant seed oil and balloon vine extract to reduce inflammation and relieve itchy, allergy-prone skin. The treatment starts with gentle cleansing and exfoliation, then follows with a pressure point massage to help stimulate the skin and lymph system. A calming mask is applied at the end to help the newly cleaned skin drink in healing botanicals like arnica, aloe vera, and chamomile — these natural active ingredients to help skin look visibly calm, healthy, and radiant.
